Dear Sirs

I disagree and object with Leeds City Council for even contemplating to sell the field/land behind my house to a building company who are going to build 80 houses (site 4020/HG2). There are enough houses built or being built in Guiseley even now, so why build any more? After my accident I moved to the Hawkstone Estate and into my bungalow, I bought this property for the field view only (from being on a farm) and had a balcony built over looking the fields and beyond which I sit out on during summer months with no on-lookers part from cows. There are a few bungalows now with balcony's with the same views as myself, and is it correct that the government has stated that you cannot be seen to be look into other peoples houses from your home? I have lived in Guiseley nearly all my life, what was a quiet little village is now full of passing vehicles, (bit like a rat run) with only 2 main roads running into it hence the very long car queues, its stupid to build more houses meaning more cars. Not to mention are green belt land being taken over with buildings.

This Country is time is going to lose the UK and become CM (concrete and metal)
