As a local resident with children that go to school in horsforth i am very against the proposal of building more new houses in the area of park lane college and the fields nearby. There is already a shortage of school places for children in this area and there are not enough shops to sustain anymore houses we have one small supermarket on town street and they couldn't cope with another 1000+ proposed houses! The medical surgeries and dentists are also full and very busy i doubt they could cope with the stress of another 1000/2000 > patients. The traffic around this area is also terrible and the addition of more houses would aggravate this further! Please reconsider these plans and use the land for other useful purposes if needs be! Something like a retail park, like kirkstall forge or new schools, supermarkets etc there are much more other things that horsforth could do with before new houses.

Your sincerely
