"That field has memories for all who live at Southlands Avenue. Like when the cows and sheep roamed it's grassy land. Before they met their destiny. And like the time I re-enacted the first scene of Joseph and the Technicolour Dreamcoat. Or when me and a couple of other kids created a den and found an injured snail and called it Gary. Sadly, Gary died. Or when me and the other kids re-enacted all of the battle scenes from the Lord of the Rings trilogy. Or when we accidentally kicked a football over the fence and the farmer chased us out of the field (it was one of the scariest days of my life).

Overall, the field at the end of the street means a lot to everyone, especially me. Because I have Aspergers (sic) it was the only place I felt safe and secure in (also my Mum liked me going there as well). Please make the right decision, and keep the field. Because I'd feel sorry for all the kids who will move in and never see it's beauty".
