Good afternoon,

I am writing regarding the new house plans for the silverdale estate/coach road.

I lived in Guiseley for over 12 years and I have seen the expansion of the town over that period.

The fields in and around Guiseley play a big part in the town, for families to walk, play and get away from the hustle and bustle of the now busy streets.

There have been several new build sites across the town which have made Guiseley almost unbearable to live in as it's getting overcrowded. Any further new builds would just be suicide for the poor town that is bursting at its seams.

The schools have been struggling so much they have had to extend, let alone when all the new houses are built. It is impossible to get doctors appointments as it stands, why should the people of Guiseley's health be compromised to make building company's money?!?

The towns amenities are cramped and a nightmare to go anywhere anymore as everywhere is so busy.

Stop using greenbelt land and land nearby an already busy town and use brown belt in much quieter towns which would benefit from the additional population.

As you will be aware, if you drive through Guiseley it is gridlocked the majority of the time. More cars equals more traffic. Which would also increase the risk of accidents and also the emergency services will not be able to pass through the town as efficiently as they need too, which could in turn cost lives.

The town cannot cope with any further building! Please do not allow this to go ahead as it will drive people from Guiseley AWAY, not entice them to the town.

I work in a letting agents and we get several phone calls from people saying that they are not looking in the Guiseley area due to the overcrowding.

Please do not allow the builder to see the pound signs and make them think of the impact they have on people's lives!!!

Regards
