Dear Sirs,

looking and reading about the allocation of greenbelt land to build 1,000's of houses in and around Horsforth and Rawdon.

It appears that the council is not adhering to the N.P.P.F or to it's own core strategy regarding the protection of greenbelt sites.

Why can't developers be made to build houses on the brownfield sites that they already have planning permission for, first ???

Consequently if these proposed developments go ahead the impact would be catastrophic to the infrastructure of the area i.e. roads, sewerage, power supplies, schools, surgeries. Not to mention the recreation spaces that would be swallowed up.

I get the feeling that the council has lost control of the whole situation, and that the developers can do just what they want.

Please Please Protect our Greenbelts.

yours sincerely
